

Caribop

Biguine et quadrille créole

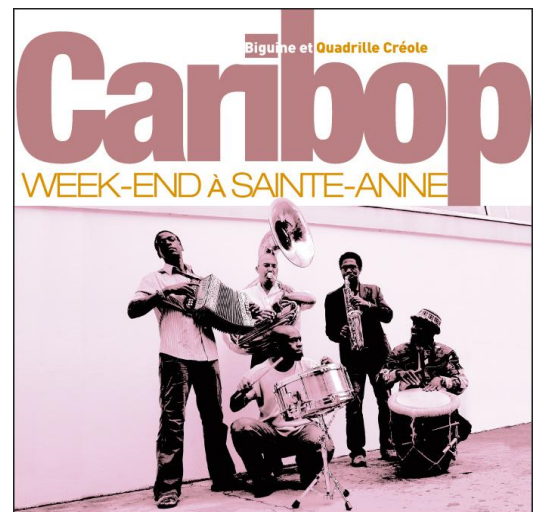

Remember this name : Caribop! This new band plays traditional Caribbean music in an unconventional way, and its members are ready to conquer every ballroom in the world.

Caribop's musicians invite you to discover their personal and free approach of the rhythms that used to be played during zouk dancing sessions in Guadeloupe and Martinica.

It is a matter of dance as much as music here. Caribop play their own compositions as well as group dances directly inspired from the European quadrilles.

At the core of the band are five musicians known for having played in various bands famous among fans of Caribbean music (Mambomania, Willy Colon, Difié Kako, Henri Guedon, David Fackeur, Ralph Tamar, Mosquito Salsa Club...).

Their vast repertoire includes : biguine, quadrille, creole mazurka, waltz, merengue...). The instruments used in the band are the diatonic accordion, saxophones, flutes, ka (traditional drum from Guadeloupe), the sousaphone (used as the bass in brass bands), as well as various percussions. If this Parisian band is not scheduled in your town or nearby, you can always listen to their first album « Week-end à Sainte Anne » : A mainly instrumental twenty track album that will please your ears and make you feel like dancing.

Gilbert Anastase : ka, percs, lead voc
Marc Vorchin : flute, diatonic accordion
Rodolphe Lauretta : alto sax, back voc
Raphaël Gouthière : sousaphone
David Gore : drums, back voc
